

Credentialing Industry Leadership Award Questions

About the Award

Recognizes an individual who demonstrated innovative leadership in the credentialing and/or licensure industry by developing, implementing and researching programs or practices.

Nominee Criteria:

- Current or retired I.C.E. member with a history of volunteer leadership or participation within the organization. Individual should be working in the credentialing field at the time of nomination and at the time the award is presented.
- Demonstrate significant evidence of contributions to the field of credentialing through:
- Innovative leadership activities related to specific credentialing activities, programs or aspects of programs (e.g. exam development, marketing, international expansion, administration, professional ethics, standards development); or
- Research activities to benefit credentialing; or
- Activities to benefit consumers/clients of certification services; or
- Exemplary service and commitment to the field of credentialing.
- Serve as an advocate to promote the benefits of credentialing to the public and/or the professional occupational communities.

Questions

- Describe the nominee's history of volunteer leadership or participation in I.C.E.
- How has this person demonstrated significant contributions to the field of credentialing?
- How has this person served as an advocate to promote the benefits of credentialing to the public and/or the professional occupational communities?

Responses

Responses to questions can be uploaded here: <https://my.credentialingexcellence.org/award-nomination?id=d5f5f981-cebd-eb11-89ee-dc98408f5496>