

Innovator Award Questions

About the Award

Recognizes an individual or organization who/which created an innovative approach to a product, policy, process, or system that transforms or achieves a new level of success in a unique and innovative way. The specific innovation should be one that is transformative and replicable for other individuals/organizations and therefore, not profession/industry specifics.

Nominee Criteria:

- Current I.C.E. member or employee of an I.C.E. member (any membership category is eligible).
- Individual or organization working in the credentialing field.
- Demonstrable success with an innovation to a product, policy, process or system that transforms or achieves a new level of success in a unique/innovative way.

Questions

- Describe the nominee's history of volunteer leadership or participation in I.C.E.
- How has this person/organization demonstrated significant contributions to the field of credentialing?
- How has this person/organization served as an advocate to promote the benefits of credentialing to the public and/or the professional occupational communities?
- For the Innovator Award: describe the innovation and how it could inspire other organizations.
